

Wanda Goodrich is, Focused on Your Priorities

Ask Wanda Goodrich what's most important to her and she'll quickly tell you that family is her top priority. Born and raised on a farm in Idaho, her close knit and loving family has always been a great source of strength and joy. Living on a farm meant that everyone had to pitch-in and do their fair share of the chores. Hard work was a natural part of daily life as were the strong values of faith, love, and commitment that were instilled by her parents. To this day, she credits her childhood experiences and her parents' prudent guidance with shaping her character as a diligent and caring person.

Spending quality time with husband Robert, an experienced loan officer, and children is Wanda's favorite activity.

Indeed, family is something that Wanda does not take for granted. Growing up with a father who waged a long battle with cancer, she realized early on that life is very precious. During this difficult time, she and her siblings pulled together so that they could keep the family farm. Reflecting upon this experience, she feels that it inspired her deep sense of love and compassion, which she demonstrates in all areas of her life.

A Can Do Attitude

Wanda's parents showed her the value of hard work. She credits her father with the "I can do anything I set my mind to" attitude that has made her an overachiever in everything she undertakes. In school she became a champion track and long distance runner. She managed to receive top grades in school and after graduation, attended Bible College. The drive, determination, and ambition she developed while growing up are the qualities that have helped her to achieve success in her real estate career.

"This is such a wonderful community. I'm grateful for the chance to give back and help others with a decision as important as buying or selling a home. And thank you for your referrals."
